BRIEF HISTORY OF THIS HISTORICAL BUILDING

Built in 1885 By Solomon Denton as a General Store, this building was originally located at the corner of Routes 94 and 515 where the Luke oil Station is presently located. Purchased in 1898 by Richard Wallace it served as a Post Office, General Store and gathering place till the early 60's. Happily rather than being torn down when the property was sold it was transported to its present location in April 1966. The Firm hired to move this building gave a rather unique guarantee. They placed a glass of on the rear porch and promised that if a drop of water spilled during the transportation there would be no charge for the work. The glass remained full and bill was paid in full.

In the recent times since becoming a restaurant the Mixing Bowl has had several owners. The current proprietor is Kenny (who's family roots in Vernon date back to 1854).

We are trying to continue the tradition of providing good food and Service to you our customers
